We follow Chicago Manual of Style, 16th (or 17th) edition using “Documentation I” style (see chapter 14).

Notes: All notes are endnotes and titles in the endnotes are capitalized.

Φ Endnotes should be formatted electronically (with automatic numbers) and according to the Chicago Manual of Style (16th ed.). Notes should be single-spaced throughout; the first line should be indented, and the number should not be superscript. Add a period after each number.

Φ To cite information from the Internet: Author’s First and Last Name/Name of organization hosting site, “Title of Internet Site,” publication dates, formatted digital object identifiers (DOI) or URL (http://www.addaddresshere.org), any revision dates. Only use your access dates (month/day/year) if other citation information is not available.

Φ Citations of electronic journal articles must include the permanent digital object identifier (DOI) number, which journals usually place on an abstract, first page, or table of contents. Use the following format: https://doi.org/ immediately followed by the number. Example: https://doi.org/10.1629/22161.

Φ Subsequent notes should include author’s name, shortened title, and page number. If the note immediately follows the same citation, use “Ibid.” and the page number:

4. Ibid., 133.

Φ When a document is referred to repeatedly within the main text (parenthetical) a note should be inserted in the endnotes.

5. Noodles Smith, Olive, as in Martini: A Novel about My Childhood (New York: Dunn Write Publications, 2010); all subsequent references to Olive, as in Martini will be cited parenthetically in the text.

Φ No internal citation except for page numbers when writing about literature, which appear in parentheses at the end of a sentence.

Φ Note numbers appear at the end of a sentence, outside punctuation, or at the end of a clause.

Φ We discourage in-text superscript numbers in headlines or subheads.

Φ When giving pagination, do not use p. or pp. before page numbers.
Acknowledgments: If there are several acknowledgments, they should be listed under the heading “Acknowledgments” just before the notes section. Short acknowledgments that are extensive can be inserted as an unnumbered endnote before the first numbered note. Example:

I would like to thank all the little people who contributed to this magnificent work of exceptional scholarship and brain-numbing audacity . . . .

Heads

Φ With some exceptions, articles should have subheads for ease of reading. Unless the article is in social science style (with an abstract, methodology, etc.), the article should never start with a subhead (e.g., no “Introduction”). The first paragraph after a subhead is not indented. No endnotes are allowed on heads. A-level subheads are ALL CAPS and centered (no bold). Do not indent first line after the title or after any subheads. B-level subheads are flush left, bold, upper- and lowercase.

Φ Epigraphs are indented 1/2” from left margin and 1/2” from right margin. All epigraphs appear with the author’s name (in roman type) and the title of the book (not the date or any other information), which are set flush right on the line beneath the epigraph quote. No endnotes are allowed on epigraphs. The author’s name should be preceded by an em-dash (roman):

The individual as an entity is invalid…. The individual as the end product of heredity and environment is incomplete. Individualism is dead.

—Harry Gamboa, Urban Exile

Quotations

Φ Prose quotations of 90 words or more (approx. 7–8 lines of 12 pt. Times New Roman font, 10–11 lines of 12 pt. Courier New) should be extracts (boxed quotations indented 1/2” from left margin). The first paragraph of a block quotation is not indented; subsequent paragraphs are. Do not use ellipses at the beginning or end of a quotation.

Φ When a quotation is “run in,” combined into a sentence, it is fine to begin it with a lowercase letter even if the original begins with a capital letter or vice versa. No brackets are needed:

Franklin advises us to “plough deep while sluggards sleep.”
Franklin advised, “Plough deep while sluggards sleep.”

Φ More than two lines of poetry should be extracted. In-text poetry should have a space before and after the slash: My favorite haiku / is really kuhai
Capitulation of Words in Text

Φ AICRJ house style includes capitalizing “Native,” “Indigenous,” and “Indigenous Peoples,” whereas “indigeneity” (a concept) is not. Spell out the acronyms “AI,” “AN” and “AI/AN” and use these terms as adjectives.

Some examples:

American Indian and Alaska Native communities (not “AI/ANs”).

(cap) Many Natives live in the Southwest; many Indigenous people live in cities; Indigenous Peoples are attending the UN conference.

(no cap) Scholarly formulations of indigeneity vary; Cuero is noted for her native plants.

Also consult the “Special Words” section on page 6 of this style guide.

Φ Remember that Chicago prefers lowercase job titles unless they appear in front of a name. If an author has good reason to use a variant spelling or punctuation (e.g., uppercasing a historical period), it’s fine. If it is simply a style issue, it should be changed for consistency.

Other Usages

Φ Eliminate excessive parentheticals

Φ Use more than in front of numbers or quantities; use over in front of terms such as the course of, the next few years, etc. “That is” implies only one example. Some words are treated specially: United States is spelled out as a noun, but is shortened to US as an adjective.

Φ When identifying multiple tribal affiliations, use a slash: Spokane/Coeur D’Alene

Italics

Φ Only rarely use italics for emphasis.

Φ Use italics for foreign words. If a word can be found in an English dictionary, it should not be italicized. We italicize each instance of a foreign word, not just the first mention. Exception: proper nouns are not italicized.

Φ Special terminology being introduced is set in italics on first appearance.

Φ Words used as titles are set in italics except for a thesis or treatise (“Treatise of Bellydancing”).

- Books: A Sacred Path
- Movies: Skins
- Poem: “She Had Some Horses”
  (unless it is a book-length poem, as in The Wasteland)
- Painting: El General
- TV program: Grand Street
- Radio program: All Things Considered
Punctuation

* AICRJ* uses a serial comma and punctuation appears before the final quotation mark. A colon is used to introduce a formal statement, a speech in dialogue, or an extract. Other examples include:

> The plane landed in Kampala, Uganda, that evening.
> Gilford’s comment, “It appears to be damaged,” was unexpected.
> The winners were France, 4; Germany, 5; Great Britain, 1.
> From 1968 to 1972 the plane had arrived intact at Washington, DC.
> Acronyms like NEH and AFL-CIO don’t have periods; acronyms are defined at first mention.

Ellipses should be standardized: three dots with one space between for an omitted fragment; four dots, only the first of which has no space preceding it, when the ellipsis spans two sentences (see Chicago for other punctuation).

Plurals: One can omit the possessive apostrophe from organizations like carpenters unions, but be sure to include it in other proper nouns (e.g., Kansas’s). Plurals of acronyms appear with lower cases (e.g., NGOs). Plurals of titles: two Chicago Tribunes, three New York Times.

Compound Words

Remember Chicago’s rules concerning hyphenated and closed compounds. Do not use a hyphen before compound words including an adverb. Some examples:

> Our early-twentieth-century poet, who was famous worldwide for his rhyme-making procedures and for always being a poorly attired scrounger, was an able-bodied sailor and a well-known crook. He had upper-class parents. He was an anti-Semitic, French Canadian, sixty-five-year-old man with a devil-may-care attitude. He was twenty-four years old when he started running in a little-known race in the late nineteenth century.

Numbers

Φ Whole numbers from one through ninety-nine are spelled out, and round numbers above that are also spelled out (e.g., two thousand years), unless giving a percentage (e.g., 45 percent voted; 1.5 million people).

Φ We show dates with the month first and the day second (e.g., October 6, 1924). We use the full decade in numerals (e.g., 1920s, not twenties).

Φ The year should never appear abbreviated (always 1990, not ’90). Use commas in all numbers over three digits (e.g., 1,000) except dates (1920).

Φ We use Chicago’s abbreviated number style (e.g., 300–05, 306–09, 310–15, 325–27) with an en-dash; (see Chicago 9.60).

Φ Numbered lists (in-text): Edgar Allen Poe was famous for three things: (1) his grilled cheese sandwiches; (2) his rendition of the song “You Light Up My Life”; and (3) his ability to stay up for days on end.
STYLES FOR FIGURES, MAPS, PHOTOS, AND TABLES

FIGURES

Call-outs

Indicate in body copy approximately where layout person should place figures or tables. Make sure the notations are large enough for the typesetter to see (bracketed, bold, all caps, etc.), as follows: [INSERT FIG. 1 HERE].

Captions

Captions should include the following if applicable: Author or Artist Name, Title, Photographer’s or Copyright Holder’s Name (Source, Date). The author can provide captions for the figures separately, or include them beneath the call-out, preceded by a bracketed, uppercase, bold: [CAPTION]

References to figures are spelled out and in text but abbreviated in parenthetical references: “As we see in figure 1 . . .”; but “(see fig. 1)” or “(fig. 1).” Spell out and capitalize the term in captions. Captions are capped sentence style; figure number is bold, small caps, with period following; caption and courtesy line are italicized:

Electronic Images: See separate guidelines, which are sent to authors upon request.

MAPS/PHOTOS

Maps and photos are called figures and should be in the same style as figures.

TABLES

References to tables are as follows: “As we see in table 1 . . .,” “(see table 1),” or “(table 1).”

Table number and title are centered, boldface, capped headline style, with no period but a hard line break following number:

Table 1
Reported Indian Activities

For ordering and styling of table notes follow The Chicago Manual of Style (3.74–3.78).
IMAGE GUIDELINES FOR THE AMERICAN INDIAN CULTURE AND RESEARCH JOURNAL

1. Images should be in grayscale at 300 dpi. They should be approximately the print size (e.g., an 8x10 print should be scanned at 4x5 for a full-column image).

2. Preferred file formats are .tif or .jpg at maximum quality compression. If submitting an image as a .pdf, ensure that the embedded fits these guidelines.

3. We will make adjustments to the highlight and shadow values for optimal print quality.

4. For images created in Illustrator or other vector programs, save as .eps or .ai. We can make any changes to these files as necessary. For images created in Photoshop or other raster-image programs, follow above guidelines as to format and resolution, and save as grayscale. For images created and/or embedded in Word, Excel, etc., save as .eps if possible, or .pdf. These images can be problematic and should be avoided, but pie charts, etc. are often created this way. Often they must be recreated by us in Illustrator, but as they sometimes import successfully in the native format, we can try to work with them if necessary. However, these images are often captured screen shots that are embedded in Word, and therefore are extremely low resolution. Check with your editor before attempting to incorporate these in your article.

5. Provide captions for all figures, maps, and photos, including the following if applicable: Author or Artist Name, Title, Photographer’s Name (Source/Copyright holder, Date).
