

Native American and Indigenous Studies Association (NAISA) Annual Meetings [Abstract]

Claudia Salomon Tarquini

This paper analyzes the main features of the annual meetings held by the Native American and Indigenous Studies Association (NAISA) between 2007 and 2013. The essay presents a brief account concerning the process that led to NAISA's creation and focuses on the topics that have received wider attention at such meetings and topical variation, as well as the geographical and institutional background of annual meeting participants.

To purchase the full article:

<http://uclajournals.org/doi/abs/10.17953/aicrj.39.2.salomontarquini>